NOVEMBER SESSIONS

Of the Several Courts of Bedford County.

REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS.

President Judge Woods Makes a Favorable Impression Upon Our Lawyers and Our People.

The several courts of Bedford county convened at the court house in Bedford on Monday and were presided over by a full bench, consisting of our new president judge, Hon. Joseph M. Woods, of Lewistown, and associates, Hon. Isaiah Conley and Hon. Eli Eichelberger. His honor, Judge Woods, has made a most favorable impression upon our Bar and our people by his gracious manner, his despatch of business and his desire to economize both in time and money. Following a judge so popular and so experienced a judge as Hon. John M. Reynolds, deceased, it was no easy matter for a new judge to enter upon and perform the duties of a president judge in our country and district. From all we can learn, after diligent inquiry, we are constrained to state that Judge Woods has pleased our people, and, if he can retain the good first impression he has made, he may well congratulate himself.

Fort Bedford Coffee.

Henry C. Heckerman, whose Fort Bedford package peanuts are known all over the United States, has put another article on the market which promises to become as popular as those famous "goobers." We refer to Fort Bedford package coffee, just introduced to the people of Bedford. Mr. Heckerman has a right to expect large sales on it because it is a household necessity, will be packed by our own town girls and there will be a handsome present in every package. The purchaser will help give employment to some deserving young women of Bedford and at the same time support a local industry. Although a young man, Mr. Heckerman has been remarkably successful in his business ventures, because of his enterprise, energy, shrewdness and tact. He has probably done more for the town than anybody else and now that he has given our citizens an opportunity to help maintain a home industry and thus provide employment for a number of girls they should gladly give him their support. Bedford needs more public-spirited men like Henry C Heckerman, she needs more industries. Let all of our citizens show their loyalty to the old town by heartily supporting this and all other enterprises that will provide work for our young men and women

An Interesting Meeting.

An enthusiastic crowd of young people attended the Loyal Temperance Legion meeting held in the Ridenour building Friday evening. Prior to the formal Legion programme innocent games were engaged in by the boys and girls, as also at the close of the evening's meeting, and all went home feeling that a pleasant as well as a profitable time had been spent. The meeting this (Friday) evening will be at the same hour, 7 o'clock, and place, Ridenour building on Pitt street. Parents will do well to give their boys and girls the advantage of this instruction along temperance and general reform lines. Not forgetting that each individual member has his or her part to perform in "lifting others as they themselves climb."

Mrs. Mary A. Logan.

Mrs Mary A. Logan, widow of the late William C. Logan, deceased, at one time a leading member of the Bedford County Bar, died at the home of her brother, Dr. George I. McKelway, of Flushing, L. Logan, of Cambridge, Md. St Clair McKelway, the famous editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, is a brother of the deceased. While living in Philadelphia Mrs. Logan was a prominent member of the Second Presbyterian church and after removing to Flushing attended the Congregational church at that place. The deceased was 64 years of age. Funeral services were conducted at her brother's residence on Saturday and on Sunday the remains were brought to Bedford and interred in the cemetery at this place. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. H. B Townsend, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Bedford.

Virginia and Bertha have been attending the West Chester Normal school and Henry is a student at the Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia.

Mr. Garber's Explanation.

Aaron Garber, former clerk to the county commissioners, says that the $47.85 allowed to Daniel Ziegler for work on old jail was not paid twice by the county; that the credit for same was given to Ziegler on his rent of old jail; that the credit of a like sum, $47.85, given to Mr. Otto on his rent, was for cash paid and not for repairs.

Rose's residence Thursday afternoon of last week and was carried into Mr. Rose's house, where he died Friday morning. Dr. A. Madore, Esq., secretary Upon motion of Attorney Frank Fletcher, a committee, with Hon. H. D. Tate as chairman, was appointed to draft appropriate resolutions. Judge Longenecker named Frank Fletcher, Esq., and D. C. Reiley, Esq., as the other members of the committee. The committee reported the following resolutions, which, after brief eulogistic remarks by Attorneys Tate, Colvin, Reynolds and Longenecker, were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Death, in its most cruel and appalling form, has again encroached upon our borders and placed its chilling grasp upon one of our former associates; therefore be it resolved by the Bedford Bar, in convention assembled,

That we have learned, with profound sorrow, of the death, under heart-stirring circumstances, of Hayes Irvine, Esq., for many years a follow-member of this Bar.

That we will remember, with pleasurable emotions, his kind, gentle and generous nature. He harbored no resentments and he inspired none. Modest and retiring in his disposition, he found no congenial employment in the activities of our profession, but was content to give his time, his learning and his intelligence to the demands of others, being satisfied with unrequited reward for labor ably done.

That we tender to his family, so deeply stricken, our sincere condolence and profound sympathy.

That, as an evidence of our respect for the memory of deceased, the members of this Bar, as far as possible, attend his funeral.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and entered upon the records of our court.

ABLE LEADERS.

There Are Many Brainy Democrats in Congress.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS,

Champ Clark, David A. De Armond, J. T. Lloyd, G. B. McClellan and W. R. Hearst Are Wise Statesmen.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

WASHINGTON, November 17.—Hon. John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, the new leader of the house on the Democratic side, has already made good the predictions of his friends that he is the right man for that position. He has had the good sense, as his friends knew he would have, to give Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri, the appointment on the ways and means committee, one of the highest honors that can come to a Democrat. Mr. Clark is one of the ablest Democrats in congress and he can do effective work against the Republican party in that position. Mr. Williams has placed Hon. David A. De Armond, of Missouri, one of the ablest men in public life today, on the committee on rules with himself. That is the most important committee in the house, for it controls all legislation emanating from the house and controls all debates. He will be absolutely invaluable to the party and to Mr. Williams in the debates that will come off this winter. Mr. Williams has also placed Hon. James T. Lloyd, of Missouri, back in his old place as the Democratic "whip" of the house. That is an honorable and responsible position, for the "whip" of the house has to see to it that a majority of the members in the city are in their seats and voting on any proposition in which is involved the party policy. As I have previously remarked in this correspondence, the Democracy can be congratulated on the leadership it possesses in the house for the next two years. Look out for John Sharp Williams.

There is one little piece of red tape that each new house goes through with that gives the spectators in the gallery and the members on the floor an opportunity to give vent to their enthusiasm for any particular man they believe in or whom they think is a popular hero. That is the time-honored function of drawing seats for the session. A page is blindfolded and he pulls out of a box a marble with a number on it, and there is a member's name opposite this number. Both are called out and the member then goes down and selects his seat. There was much applause when certain men were called out. For instance, there was a resolution adopted that gave the floor leader of the Republican side, Hon. Sereno Payne, of New York, and the oldest member on that side of the house, Hon. Harry Bingham, of Pennsylvania, the floor leader of the Democratic side, Hon. John Sharp Williams, the right to choose their seats without drawing for them. There was much applause when they went forward and chose their seats. Then the names of prominent men on both sides of the house were called out and as they went down the aisle to get their seats there went up the plaudits of their friends. Among the number on the Democratic side who were recognized in this manner were Hon. George B. McClellan, lately elected mayor of Greater New York, and Hon. William Randolph Hearst, of New York, who has done so much for the cause of Democracy and the common people of the country. He received an ovation that must have warmed the cockles of his heart, for it is the universal opinion here that he and his papers, with himself as the directing Democratic head, won the recent election in the city of New York. The Democrats all feel very kindly toward him for his work for the party and they improved the opportunity to show him their marked appreciation of his brilliant work in behalf of Democracy.

He has received marked attention from Democrats here since the assembling of congress. Some of the party leaders are beginning to find out that he is a much bigger man than they thought; that he was not merely a newspaper man who had made a phenomenal success of the business, but that the reason he made the success was because he was an able executive, a single-minded patriot and a lover of the common people. As a consequence his stock as the nominee of the Democracy for the presidency has gone up several points.

It is too early to predict what the big fights will be in this congress, but the fight on the Cuban reciprocity proposition is going to be a bitter one. There will not be as many Republican recalcitrants in this congress as there were in the last on that proposition, for the reason, as stated in this correspondence not long ago, that the sugar trust has bought out the beet sugar interests and that has closed the mouths of many Republicans who otherwise would be opposed to Cuban reciprocity. There are some, however, who still hold out against it, and they will line up with the Democrats and fight it unless they will allow the Democratic amendment to go through removing the differential from refined sugar. The Democrats are perfectly willing to give Cuba all the reciprocity she asks for or give her free trade with this country, provided they can remove the differential from refined sugar, which will give the consumers of this country a chance. This is exactly what the sugar trust does not want. With reciprocity with Cuba on raw sugar to the extent of a twenty-five per cent. reduction on the present tariff, and retaining the differential on refined sugar, the trust makes not less than eight millions a year out of the game. That is the milk in the cocoanut. It is a straight fight between the people and the sugar trust. Watch the game.

To the intense delight of the Democratic leaders here, the Republican administration has actually tied up in a nice package and handed to the Democracy another and a corking good campaign issue in this dirty mess in the Panama country. It is the belief here not only among Democrats, but among many good Republicans, that the recent revolution in the United States of Colombia in Central America was hatched in this country and at the instigation of this Republican administration in order to get control of the Panama canal. In other words, the game put up in the senate to get the usufruct out of those Panama canal bonds has got to go through at any cost. This Republican administration plays into their hands and incites revolution down there and robs that little country of a slice of its territory in order to give the senatorial cabal its rakeoff. How are they going to get away from the imputation that they are responsible for this revolution? If they are not, then there must be some expert mind-readers in the navy department, for no sooner had the first rumblings of this trouble between Colombia and one of its states been wafted over the earth than this country had several naval vessels at the proper point in a jiffy in order to put backbone into the revolutionists and to intimidate the Colombian forces. Then this government makes haste to "recognize" the new republic of Panama. It is an infernal outrage and a national disgrace. I will explain all in my next letter.

CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

THE CUBAN BILL.

Measure for Which Congress Was Called in Extraordinary Session.

WASHINGTON, November 13.—In the house yesterday Mr. Payne introduced a bill making effective the Cuban reciprocity treaty, for which congress was called in extraordinary session. It was referred to the committee on ways and means, after reading by title. It is as follows:

That whenever the president of the United States shall receive satisfactory evidence that the republic of Cuba has made provision to give full effect to the articles of the convention between the United States and the republic of Cuba signed on the 11th day of December, in the year 1902, he is hereby authorized to issue his proclamation declaring that he has received such evidence, and thereupon, on the tenth day after exchange of ratifications of such convention between the United States and the republic of Cuba, and so long as the said convention shall remain in force, all articles of merchandise being the product of the soil or industry of the republic of Cuba, which are now imported into the United States free of duty, shall continue to be so admitted free of duty, and all other articles of merchandise being the product of the soil or industry of the republic of Cuba imported into the United States shall be admitted at a reduction of 20 per centum of the rates of duty thereon, as provided by the tariff act of the United States, approved July 24, 1897, or as may be provided by any tariff law of the United States subsequently enacted. The rates of duty herein granted by the United States to the republic of Cuba are and shall continue during the term of said convention preferential in respect to all like imports from other countries: Provided, that while said convention is in force no sugar imported from the republic of Cuba and being the product of the soil or industry of the republic of Cuba shall be admitted into the United States at a reduction of duty greater than 20 per centum of the rates of duty thereon as provided by the tariff act of the United States, approved July 24, 1897, and no sugar, the product of any other foreign country, shall be admitted by the treaty or convention into the United States while this convention is in force at a lower rate of duty than that provided by the tariff act of the United States, approved July 24, 1897, and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be held or construed as an admission on the part of the house of representatives that customs duties can be changed otherwise than by an act of congress, originating in said house.

Section 2.—That so long as said convention shall remain in force the laws and regulations adopted, or that may be adopted by the United States to protect the revenues and prevent fraud in the declarations and proofs that the articles of merchandise to which said convention may apply, are the product or manufacture of the republic of Cuba, shall not impose any additional charge of fees therefor on the articles imported, excepting the consular fees established, or which may be established, by the United States for issuing shipping documents, which fees shall not be higher than those charged on the shipments of similar merchandise from any other nation whatsoever; that articles of the republic of Cuba shall receive on their importation into the ports of the United States treatment equal to that which similar articles of the United States shall receive on their importation into the ports of the republic of Cuba; that any tax or charge that may be imposed by the national or local authorities of the United States upon the articles of merchandise of the republic of Cuba, embraced in the articles of said convention, subsequent to importation and prior to their entering into consumption into the United States, shall be imposed and collected without discrimination upon like articles whencesoever imported.

The Colombian authorities have cabled to London a lengthy protest against the United States' action toward Panama, in which they claim that the "main responsibility for the secession of Panama lies with the United States government, firstly by fomenting the separatist spirit of which there seems to be clear evidence; secondly, by hastily acknowledging the independence of the revolted province, and finally, by preventing the Colombian government from using proper means to repress the rebellion."

The congregation is fortunate in having such a skilful player, Percy Daniels, who has taken a course of instruction on the pipe organ and for two years played in the chapel of Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster, and in some of the churches at that place. A Thought for Today.

Some places and some things have far greater value attached to them than others possess from the fact of their being associated with events or experiences which have become memorable. Association fills the mind with these memories and forever the place or event becomes sacred to you. Bunker Hill and Gettysburg in our history are thus thronged with memories. Old places and castles like Kenilworth or Warwick or the Tower of London or a thousand others we might mention are thus enriched.

And so there are not only places and events which have this value for us, but other things which derive preciousness for us in their associations. Take the 23rd Psalm. How many poor souls has it comforted; how many sick rooms and prison-cells has it lighted; how many poor and sorrowing have found help and cheer in its words And so this little humming bird of the psalms has a sweetness which the others may not have.

Take the Lord's Prayer. Consider its origin and the many times it has been repeated—how it has expressed the desires and needs of millions; how many mothers' knees have been shrines where the children learned to lisp its sweet syllables. And how it binds us in the service of the church. We bless our Savior for this our Lord's Prayer—which has become the prayer of untold millions of the Lord's own.

Let us be grateful for these prayers and songs of praise and holy scenes and associations, and make them all as terraces upon which our faith and hope and love may climb in worshiping spirit to the throne of the Infinite Father of us all—and as we get nearer to Him we will get nearer to each other.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Chairman J. K. P Hall, of the Democratic state committee, was at the party's headquarters in Harrisburg on Friday closing up the accounts of the last campaign. Every charge was canceled. Chairman Hall, in a talk to a newspaper man, said that, in practical results, the Democrats had a decided advantage over the Republicans at the last election, despite the fact that they had neither money nor offices to make an active campaign. Speaking of the falling off in the Democratic vote at the election on November 3, Mr. Hall said:

"Our net gains over the Republicans are one judicial district, two congressional districts, two senatorial districts and twelve representative districts. This is a pretty good showing for the Democrats in an off year

"The Republicans polled 198,903 votes less than they did for McKinley in 1900 and the Democrats polled 195,-562 less votes than they cast for Bryan at the same election. The Republicans polled 212,251 less votes for Snyder than they did for McKinley, and the Democrats polled 187,727 less votes for Hill than they cast for Bryan, showing that, in the stay-at-home vote, the Republicans lost 24,552 more votes than the Democrats. And yet the Republican state committee pretended to be running an active state campaign "

SNAP JUDGMENT.

For his remarkable zeal in carrying out the world power programme of the present administration President Roosevelt has been severely criticized by the papers and patriots of the United States, but it is not often that a Republican organ lifts its voice in protest, and for this reason the following editorial clipped from the Philadelphia Public Ledger, one of the brainiest and bravest of the independent Republican journals of the state, is especially interesting:

"The president showed discretion in the brevity of his reply to the minister plenipotentiary of the new 'Republic' of Panama. His discretion would have been still greater had he said even less

"M. Varilla, who is also, or has lately been, the accredited agent of the canal company, quite frankly stated that in 'consecrating' Panama's right to separate existence the president had 'put an end to what appeared to be the interminable controversy as to the rival waterways.' The president was more guarded. He made but an incidental reference to the canal and declared that we were merely doing now 'as we did nearly a century ago, when the Latin peoples of America proclaimed the right of popular government.'

"This must be taken rhetorically. As a matter of fact, what the United States did then was to wait until these Latin peoples had established both their right to independence and their ability to sustain it, and Spain had practically abandoned the attempt to assert her sovereignty. We did not wait for this in the case of Panama. We did not give Colombia a chance to assert her authority. We took snap judgment and recognized Panama without the slightest evidence of her ability to 'discharge the obligations pertaining to sovereignty.'

"Any reference to precedent must condemn this hasty action utterly. M. Varilla is much nearer the truth when he undisguisedly puts the whole business on the sole basis of 'the achievement of the Panama canal,' to which the international obligations of the United States have been needlessly and unhappily sacrificed."

Millennium in 1912.

The statement is made by a prominent divine in the west that the millennium will arrive in the year 1912, and bases his claim on the prophecies of the Bible. Whether his prophecy is correct or not, time alone will tell, but in the meantime we should make the most out of our lives, and the first essential to this is good health. A sickly person cannot enjoy life because he lacks the vigor and vitality necessary for such enjoyment, and consequently always feels down-hearted and depressed. It was for such persons that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first introduced fifty years ago, and many persons to-day can ascribe their good health to its use. It positively cures indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and liver and kidney troubles. Don't fail to try it.

How Napoleon Used Us.

When we bought the Louisiana territory from France we were unconscious agents of Napoleon's hatred toward England; for, as John R. Spears reminds us in his "Beginnings of the American Navy" in Harper's for December, Napoleon said, when he ordered the sale of the colony to us: "This accession of territory strengthens forever the power of the United States, and I have just given to England a maritime rival that will sooner or later humble her pride." But Mr. Spears reminds us also of our humble beginnings as a naval power, recalling that in 1796 97 "no less than 308 American merchantmen were captured by French cruisers and privateers." Mr. Spears then relates how the tide of American feeling turned and our navy began its real existence.

International S. S. Lesson for November 22

THE CURSE OF STRONG DRINK.—World's Temperance Lesson. Prov. 20:1, 23:20-35.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Wine is a mocker." Prov. 20:1.

Wine is a mocker, strong drink is noisy and whosoever indulgeth therein will never be wise. Be not among those that drink wine immoderately, among those that over-indulge in eating of flesh; for the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty: and drowsiness clotheth a man in rags

Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry late over the wine: they that come to seek for mixed drink.

Do not look on the wine when it looketh red, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it glideth down so readily. At the last it will bite like a serpent and like a basilisk will it sting. Thy eyes will see strange forms and thy heart will speak perverse things. And thou wilt be like one who lieth on the top of a mast or as he that lieth down in the heart of the sea They have stricken me, shalt thou say, and I was not sick; they have beaten me, and I felt it not; when shall I awake? I will continue to seek it again. Woe unto those that rise up early in the morning, that they may run after strong drink; that continue late in the twilight, till wine inflame them! Woe unto those that are heroes to drink wine and men of might to mingle strong drink!

Immediately after the tribulation shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory And take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness and cares of this life and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of Light and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober. For they that sleep sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night But let us who are of the day be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for a helmet, the hope of salvation. For God hath not appointed us to wrath but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, Who died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with Him.

And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the spirit. For in the hand of the Lord there is a cup and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and He poureth out of the same; but the dregs thereof all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them.

If any man worship the beast and his image and receive his mark in his forehead or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of His indignation: and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb of God. and the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever.

Not a Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C., writes. Only 50c, at J. R. Irvine & Co's. THE NEW MAYOR

Will Have Many Offices at His Disposal—The Nation is Coming to a Brighter and Better Day.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

NEW YORK, November 17.—Joy, happiness and congratulations to the mayor-elect from the mayor who is just going to step down and out. He offers his services if he can be useful, and, with that knightly courtesy for which he is distinguished, George B. McClellan returns his grateful thanks. Now the only possible way that Mayor Low can make himself useful is by doing as Tammany does, and that is the way which he has been denouncing all through the canvass. A cartoon appeared in one of our daily papers with the Hon. Mr. Fornes on one side and the Hon. Mr Grout on the other. As the mayor-elect is in the middle you have time to contemplate a good, kind, honest face; the other two are classed as men of the world; they have evidently been in the height of the battle, and with the wisdom gained by experience and thought, they may have gained the wisdom of the serpent.

The amended charter has given to our mayor-elect a power almost as strong as that held by the Czar of Russia, except in the case of life and death, and this power will be used to its fullest extent and a clean sweep may be expected when it comes to the division of the loaves and fishes. It has been a number of years since such a rich reward has been placed within the hands of the Democrats. Politically, not a fat job will be left for the Republicans if the new broom can reach them. Civil service reform is an excellent thing for those who are in the inside of the official list, but to the outsiders it is an abomination. To take the whole political matter in a nutshell, the mayor is no longer held in check by the board of aldermen; he can nominate whom he pleases and they walk into the rich offices and no thanks to the honorable board. It is a singular phase in our political creed that men who are held up by both parties as entirely unfit for the offices they seek should be as spotless as an angel's wing when the election is over. Mr. Grout, who was elected on a reform ticket two years ago, evidently has given such satisfaction to his constituents that the electors have concluded that they can find no man in the Democratic or Reform parties to fill the place that he now occupies. Now we enter on a new era. It is conceded that Charles J. Murphy is the Democratic representative of the whole United States.

Notwithstanding the political cyclone which has shaken New York as a reed is shaken by the wind, there is "Balm in Gilead," even for those who suffered in defeat. Their comfort is that the nation is coming to a brighter and better day—to a betterment in the humanity of the age. People by hundreds and thousands there are who leave their own domestic affairs to look after the waifs and friendless gamins of the street. Humanity also reaches out for the dumb animals who cannot speak for themselves. A man need not be very old to remember seeing carts crossing the city loaded with lambs and goats with their feet tied together, suffering tortures that can not be described; their cries not appealing to the inhuman brutes who knew no pity. Heaven, we thank Thee, that this they cannot do today. These creatures have friends patrolling our streets and speaking for the poor dumb brutes which cannot speak for themselves. As you enter the stately and solemn portals of Greenwood cemetery you will see on the left a magnificent floral cross. It was planted there to voice the memory of Louis Millard, the friend of suffering animals throughout the globe, wherever humanity has a champion and a name. Louis Millard was a machinist who occupied two rooms in the most depraved part of the city and lived a hermit in the midst of millions: dying, he left his fortune of $200,000 for the formation of a society for the protection of dumb animals. People scouted at the idea that any man could live in the midst of such stolid wretchedness and have such a fortune to waste for the protection of animals, and yet, from all outside appearances, not have enough for his own daily bread. At this particular time Eldridge T. Gerry, a wealthy citizen, had formed an association for the protection of dumb animals and he undertook the management of this noble bequest. He framed a code of laws for the association which was confirmed by the legislature and became a law; he bought numerous buildings where sick animals are taken care of and by his splendid example associations were formed all over the country in this cause. Thus, after all, it is safe to conclude that the age is growing better, not but that there is much left for humanity to do.

In the stirring pastime of the week which has just expired comes to us the joyful news of the birth of a new republic. That which was only a riot a few weeks ago has developed into a successful revolution, which has given birth to a new republic, and the United States has already acknowledged the independence of Panama. We have warships down there to protect our American interests, and we say to the world, "Hands off, let these revolutionists and the old government settle it among themselves." That portion of the Isthmus of Panama which is now a republic has virtually been in American hands for half a century. Nine-tenths of the travel that went to California in the early days had to cross the most interesting part of what is now the new republic; American capital built the railroad across the Isthmus of Aspenwall on the Atlantic side to the old city of Panama on the Pacific. Constant association and the outlay of many millions of capital has been the means of securing a very favorable attitude toward the government of the United States. The French and German interests have never been regarded on the Atlantic side as they have on the Pacific. It was the first nation to recognize the necessity of a ship canal. It was a gigantic undertaking and demanded hundreds of millions for its completion. The reckless extravagance of those at the head of the enterprise threw the whole affair into the hands of DeLesseps, who had completed the Suez canal, and he and his constituents thought he could complete anything by merely lending his name. This was taken advantage of by sharps and swindlers, who made fortunes without risking a penny. When the villainy could be concealed no longer the bubble burst. That which had been the richest of gilt edged securities became worthless, and men who thought themselves beyond the measure of chance found themselves beggars. DeLesseps' name, once a name to swear by, was cursed and hissed until it broke the old man's heart. On investigation, splendid engines, locomotives and other expensive machinery were found buried on the isthmus. The ruin that DeLesseps brought on his native land brings memories of the Tulip craze, the South Sea bubble and the mad speculations of Hudson, the celebrated railroad king. The new organization about to be completed will serve as a lamp for those who are looking for rapid fortunes; it has behind it the backing of the greatest republic in existence, and if ever completed, will rank as the eighth wonder of the world. I suppose we will have to act as sponsor for the new republic of Panama and abide the success of the event.

The close of the summer season makes rather an unfortunate and awkward showing on the wrong side of the family ledger and our vagrant tourists are hurrying home and expect in some lucky trust to recoup the season. To an outsider it looks as if our places of amusement were enjoying an average prosperity. Of the character of the entertainments offered to the public not one in ten appeals to the intellect for its merit. It is intended to dazzle the eyes and lull the senses to repose; only this and nothing more. There is one dramatic fact that strikes me as rather singular; Joseph Jefferson is nearly 80 years of age; he has the temerity to come to the nation's capital, as well as travel about, with two old plays which were worn out nearly 50 years ago and we all imagined had been dead and buried, but, for all practical purposes, doing all that the Italian opera can do, which pays its singers $1,000 a night, and people are paying $2 and $2.50 to see those antediluvian productions and go home perfectly satisfied that they have gotten their full money's worth and have enjoyed a happy evening's intellectual entertainment. F. W. Jordan's Unusual Offer.

Sells Dr. Howard's Specific at Half-Price, and Guarantees a Cure.

"It isn't often that I have faith enough in the medicine put up by other people to be willing to offer to refund the money if it does not cure," said F. W. Jordan to a GAZETTE man who dropped into his store, "but I am glad to sell Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia on that basis.

"The Dr. Howard Company, in order to get a quick introductory sale, authorizes me to sell their regular fifty cent bottles at half-price, 25 cents, and, although I have sold a lot of it, and have guaranteed every package, not one has been brought back as unsatisfactory.

"One great advantage of this specific," he continued, "is its small dose and convenient form. There are sixty doses in a vial that can be carried in the vest pocket or purse, and every one has more medicinal power than a big pill or tablet or a tumbler of mineral water.

"I am still selling the specific at half-price, although I cannot tell how long I shall be able to do so, and anyone who is subject to constipation, sick headache, dizziness, liver trouble, indigestion, or a general played-out condition, ought to take advantage of this chance. You can tell your readers that if they are not satisfied with the specific they can come right back to my store and I will cheerfully refund their money."

"THE IRON MONSTER."

Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow's Sunday Evening Lecture.

FRANK NORRIS' OCTOPUS.

Story of the Desperate Battle the California Wheat-Growers Waged Against the Railroad and Its Ruinous Rates.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, November 16.—"The Iron Monster" was the subject of a lecture at the Vine Street Congregational church last evening by the pastor, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow.

Text: "And behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces and stamped the residue with the feet of it" Daniel 7:7.

To most of us, said Mr. Bigelow, the book of Daniel remains an unsolved riddle. This is the favorite book of religionists who seek scriptural authority for extravagant and fantastical doctrines. The grotesque imagery will lend itself to almost any interpretation.

What is the meaning of our text? There may be those who know and who are able to decipher from it the exact date of the end of the world or who find in it the key to other unlocked mysteries.

I would not presume to say what was in the author's mind, but after reading Frank Norris' "Octopus", these words of Daniel suggest themselves. "The Octopus" is the title of a novel. The scene of the story is in the California wheat-belt. It tells of the desperate and losing battle which the California wheat-growers waged against the railroad and its ruinous rates Read this story of the havoc wrought and the hearts broken and the hopes crushed by this monstrous monopoly and see if the metaphor in the book of Daniel does not fit the case.

"A beast, dreadful and terrible and strong exceedingly, devouring its victims with great iron teeth and stamping them to pieces with hoofs of steel"—such is the railroad monopoly.

This book takes us out on the great ranches, which extend as far as the eye can see and are bounded only by the horizon. There are the huge breasts of mother earth where half the world is suckled. From these wide fallows comes the bread of millions. Once harvested, the wheat is carried by the railroad to tide water and from there it is carried in ships around the globe.

Water rates are reasonable, for it is easier to build boats than to secure railroad rights of way and the competition on water is guarantee against extortion. But to get the wheat to tide water the wheat-growers are compelled to deal with the railroad company. The railroad does not ask, "What can we afford to carry this wheat for?" It asks, "What will the traffic bear?" By virtue of its monopoly of the transportation business the railroad can take the lion's share.

But the railroad was, also, the great land monopolist of that region. As a subsidy, the government had given the railroad company millions of acres. Farmers were invited to settle upon these railroad lands with the assurance that as soon as the railroad secured its patents to the land it would cede it to the settlers for the nominal price of $2.50 an acre.

On one pretext or another, the actual transfer of this land was postponed from year to year. At last, when the railroad got ready to sell, it demanded $27 per acre. The farmers formed a league which had for its double object the election of railroad commissioners who would reduce freight rates and a legal battle to compel the road to keep its agreement and sell for $2 50 per acre.

Mr. Norris' novel deals with the fortunes of this League. The farmers are beaten in one court after another and at last the railroad sells to dummy purchasers and, with the aid of a United States marshal and his deputies, it undertakes to evict the farmers. Outraged by what they believe to be the shameless corruption of the courts, the farmers resolve to defend their homes by force.

Their spies inform them of the approach of the officers and they take a stand in an irrigating ditch with Winchesters in hand. But the shots of those embattled farmers, unlike the shots at Lexington, did not go around the world, for the railroad controlled the wires and never permitted the world to get the farmers' version of the story. It was a bloody day. On the field of the dead the young bride found her husband, the mother, her son. Men were cut off in the prime of life and children were left without any defence from hunger. The savings of years were confiscated, household goods were thrown into the roadway and homes ruthlessly invaded. This was the act of a hateful monopoly that got its corporation lawyers nominated for judges, that maintained powerful lobbies and dominated legislatures that made the law or defied it at will, that levied its tribute upon the industries of a great state and was feared and placated and hated by all.

With the novelist, we follow these evicted farmers. Madness was the end of one. One simple German woman was found dead in a vacant lot in San Francisco. She had died of starvation and a little child was crying in her rigid arms. Another, a comely country lass, a stranger in the great city, went the way of those whose feet lay hold on hell. And, aloof from the squalor of the hunted and harried victims of monopoly, stood the palaces of the railroad magnates, where beautiful women and imperious men feasted and gambled and made merry amid scenes of royal splendor.

Is it without justification that the agitator, stung with hunger, looks at these palaces from his side of the social gulf and shouts?

We know them for what they are—ruffians in politics, ruffians in finance, ruffians in law, ruffians in trade, bribers, swindlers and tricksters. No outrage too great to daunt them, no petty larceny too small to shame them, despoiling a government of a million dollars, yet picking the pockets of a farm hand of the price of a loaf of bread."

The railroad is an unspeakable blessing. But railroad monopoly is a beast, dreadful and terrible and strong exceedingly; devouring its victims with iron teeth and stamping them to death with hoofs of steel.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Cure Catarrh By Nature's Own Method—Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently your physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

F. W. Jordan has sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more he sells, the more convinced he is that he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

Sardines.

Genuine sardines are the young of the pilchard. Their name comes from the fact that they are most numerous off the coast of Sardinia. They swim in the spring in shoals containing millions—fish shaped shoals ten miles long and a half mile wide. The sardines are netted and taken at once to the shore. There they are washed, scraped and sprinkled with salt. The salt is soon removed, the heads and gills cut off and there is another washing. Then, on beds of green brush, the fish are dried in the sun. Next they are boiled in olive oil till cooked thoroughly.

The packers—women always—take them now and pack them in the tin boxes we all know, filling up each box with boiling oil, fitting on the lid and making the box air tight by soldering the joints together with a jet of hot steam. Sardines are more or less perfect according as they are prepared more or less immediately after their capture and according as the oil they are packed in is more or less pure.

For Peace Only.

It is well known that the Friends have always been devoted to the principles of peace. As they had a controlling influence in the public affairs of Nantucket, there was no military organization on that island for several generations. How the matter was managed is told by the author of "September Days on Nantucket."

Whenever military companies came to the island for a holiday young women thronged the windows and waved handkerchiefs, but there was no rise of military ambition in the town. Once a coterie of young men formed a training company and sent to Boston for equipments, but their elders compelled them to make the first article of their constitution read: "This company shall be disbanded immediately in case of war."

An Unsatisfied Ambition.

It is said by an old historian that when the Spanish armada sailed along the south coast of England in Queen Elizabeth's reign the Duke of Medina-Sidonia, admiral of the armada, was so affected at the sight of Mount Edgcumbe, a beautiful mansion, viewed from the sea, that "he resolved it for his own possession in the partage of the kingdom, which the Spaniards preconquered in their hopes and expectation." But, as the author quaintly observes, "he had catched a great cold, and he had no other clothes to wear than those which were to be made of the skin of a bear not yet killed."

Quick Witted.

When Mrs. Isabella Bishop, the well known traveler, was in the United States she had at least one funny experience. She was riding in a car in Chicago and felt her pocket being picked, but said nothing at the moment. Presently along came the conductor to collect his fares. When he reached Mrs. Bishop she quietly remarked: "This gentleman," turning to the thief, "will pay. He has my purse."

He paid, and she got back her purse.

Lighting a Candle by Smoke.

When the candle has burned low, so as to leave a tolerably large wick, blow it out. A dense smoke will arise. If another candle be applied to the farthest end of the smoke a very strange thing will happen. The flame of the lighted candle will be carried to the one just blown out, looking sometimes like a flash of lightning proceeding at a slow rate. The experiment may be performed by blowing out the candle as often as it is lighted.

Tax Extraordinary.

A tax on marriage is still imposed by the proprietor of a leading Bombay hotel. In a revised tariff of prices the daily charge for a single lady or gentleman is set down as 5 rupees, but if the lady or gentleman be married the charge will be 7 rupees each. No explanation of this singular regulation is given.

GETTING TO SLEEP

Some Points About the Art of Wooing Peaceful Slumber

All conditions must be favorable to sleep The bed room should be quiet, dark and airy In winter it is better to have the window way up than to shut it so that a knife edged draft shall chill an exposed shoulder The temperature of the bed should be agreeable Getting to sleep when the feet are cold is as slow a job as getting to sleep when hungry A hot water bottle in one case and a piece of bread and butter in the other will help things I leave it to you to decide which is for which A warm bed in winter is easily got but a cool bed in summer is not so simple a proposition However a sheet made of straw matting interposed between the regular sheet and the mattress will be found to mitigate sensibly the horrors of a hot night It preserves the softness and springiness of the bed and yet is plenty cool without being too cool For so ... I find that sleep comes soonest when I have no pillows at all

The next thing is to relax utterly Remember that the corner of the jaw is the citadel of tension While that is clenched no sleep can come But most important of all is the disposition of the mind so that sleep can come The reason why we fail in this is the same as the reason why we fail in other things We do not very genuinely want to succeed As we lie stretched out after a busy day there are so many thoughts that we want to chase after that we drop the notion of sleep though we know that tomorrow is another day on which we can think It is all very well to say Dismiss these thoughts ' How to dismiss them is the problem that each must solve —Harvey Sutherland in Everybody s Magazine

The customer walked out of the store and the clerk turned to a friend

After the Irishman has made his rounds he takes the hats to a shop on South street and there they are taken apart The silk linings and bands and sweatbands are removed and the hat ... cleaning and new material and trimmings put on When it is all fixed up it is extremely difficult to tell it from a new hat and in many cases it will sell for as high as $2 When you can buy a hat for ... cents ... cents ... and ... you see ... and don't you' — ...

The "Show" and the Showy People

Society in England is divided into two classes —show people and showy people To the first society belongs, the second are anxious to belong to society

Of the former there are comparatively few It is a feature of the times that there are very many of the latter

The show people are those who because of their position their popularity or their abilities have attained prominence and are more or less associated together in the social life of their period

The showy people without the position the popularity or the abilities strive to become prominent by display extravagance eccentricities or self advertisement Their carriages are painted in the most glaring color they are dressed expensively even on ordinary occasions they are tireless and tire some in their endeavors to appear to be associated with society their life is made up of a series of continuous hopes and disappointments and they take consolation in the bitter vindictiveness —London Truth

BLOOD CIRCULATION.

Breathing and Its Relation to the Secret of Good Health

The secret of health as every intelligent physician knows is free and full circulation of the blood and this circulation is dependent absolutely on thorough oxygenation In many cases where erroneous habits of living have been so long continued that congestion has become chronic in some form or other obesity gout rheumatism constipation or tuberculosis having cropped in the system and crippled it—the patient is not yet to be in a condition to receive and utilize a sufficient quantity of oxygen direct from the atmosphere If breathing apparatus has first been properly developed so that the patient shall be able to gradually increase the supply of air to the system until it has ... the ... power of ...

With ... the lungs through proper breathing there is a metabolism of all the tissues and organs so that for most men breathing exercises are more important than any mere muscular exercise Not only the lungs but all the internal organs are brought into play by correct breathing It develops the heart stomach liver and kidneys directly and indirectly and nourishes all these organs as they should be nourished by more blood and better blood in constant and regular circulation Breathing therefore is a sovereign remedy for our national disease of nervous depletion It might well replace the countless tonics stimulants and anodynes now so commonly resorted to where results are nothing less than ... in thousands of cases —Maurice Manning M D in Vim

Mohammedans and Pigs

A recent traveler in Somaliland gives the following curious incident showing the Mohammedan hatred for pigs We shot two wart hogs one a particularly big boar Alan wished to keep the tusks but of course none of the Somalis would touch the unclean animal At last a bribe of 2 rupees induced the Midgan woman to chop the tusks out with a hatchet Even then she would not touch them and with the help of two sticks which she used like a pair of tongs put them on a camel Then there was a long dispute about the hatchet No one would touch it It had been defiled Of course this was pure affectation and playing to the gallery on the ayah's part At home with her native tribe she would have got all the pig she could get But it flattered the Somalis and we marched off the ayah holding the hatchet at arm s length as if it were going to bite her'

As to Mobs

You can't punish a mob unless you punish it while it is a mob A man is not the same man while he is in a mob as he is while he is an individual and this is one reason why it is so difficult ever to punish the individual for what he did as a part of a mob This distinction is not fanciful it is a real difference and public sentiment and prosecuting officers and juries recognize it whether they know it or not For this reason it is generally useless to hope for the punishment of men after a mob has dispersed —World's Work

Thackeray's Mustache.

In a note on Samuel Laurence s portrait of Thackeray—that representing the novelist s face in full—the Illustrated London News of Oct. 13 1855, says

'It is not, we must confess, altogether true to his present appearance, for it wants a recent and becoming addition to the upper lip in the shape of a black mustache that contrasts most admirably with a head of silver gray but it is like the man and will be welcome to his many admirers"

The reference here to the mustache is interesting for the reason that every portrait of Thackeray, with one exception represents him with a clean shaven upper lip The exception being Maclise s pencil drawing of the famous 'Titmarsh' which however belongs to a much earlier date—say about 1840—and in which there is just a suspicion of a mustache Presumably the hirsute appendage of 1855 was merely a passing fancy which the razor speedily disposed of —Notes and Queries

The Boys In Gray

A question often asked according to the United Service is why the army cadets at West Point wear a gray uniform while the uniform of the army is blue The origin of the distinction dates back to the war of 1812 14 when the commissary general of the army could not procure the blue cloth required for General Winfield Scott s brigade and so they were clad in gray So distinguished was the conduct of that brigade at Lundy s Lane and Chippewa that when after the war of 1812 a reorganization of West Point Military academy was made out of compliment to General Scott and his brigade the uniform of the corps of cadets was changed from blue to gray

Alcohol In Medicine

Our own opinion in which we have frequently set forth is that alcoholic beverages are of value in certain forms of disease and that their value depends not so much upon the alcohol but upon the various ethers which these beverages contain or should contain No medical man doubts that intemperance in alcohol is an appalling factor in the spread of crime disease and poverty and it is undoubtedly the duty of the medical profession to endeavor to stay the curse of drink by every means in its power —London Lancet

THE TOWER OF SILENCE.

Bombay's Grewsome Cemetery and Its Well Fed Vultures

The Tower of Silence on top of Malabar hill is the prettiest spot in Bombay There is a circle of concrete walls twenty five feet high Inside this wall six feet from the top is an inclined floor of concrete divided into three circles and surrounding a pit The outer circle is widest and is for the men the second circle is a little narrower and is for the women, the inner circle, surrounding the pit, is narrowest of the three and is for the children The center pit is deep and filled in the bottom with sand and charcoal There are five of these When a Parsee dies he is laid in one of these No one ever sees the inside but those who bear the bodies in and they do not look around but walk right out Overhead and perched on the tops of the walls are many vultures When a body is borne in these vultures swoop down and in two hours they have eaten it clean Then the bones are swept into the pit and the rain washes the circles clean and the bones in the pit crumble to dust and the water drains off through the sand and charcoal into the earth The vultures sometimes become so large and heavy they can hardly fly They allow no other birds near the place That is how the Parsees dispose of their dead

When a person complains of a bad taste in his mouth every morning on waking up says a physician the first question I ask him is as to the position he assumes when going to sleep An immense number of people sleep on the left side and this is the most common cause of the unpleasant taste which is generally attributed to dyspepsia If a meal had been taken within two or three hours of going to bed to sleep on the left side is to give the stomach a task which it is difficult in the extreme to perform The student of anatomy knows that all food enters and leaves the stomach on the right side and hence sleeping on the left side soon after eating involves a sort of pump ing operation which is anything but conducive to sound repose The action of the heart is also interfered with considerably and the lungs are unduly compressed It is probable that lying on the back is the most natural position but few men can rest easily so and hence it is best to cultivate the habit of sleeping on the right side It is very largely a matter of habit and the sooner it is acquired the better

Camel Carriages

Camel carriages are not common conveyances in most parts of India but on the great trunk road leading to Delhi they are frequently to be seen They are large double story wagons drawn sometimes by one sometimes by two or even three camels according to their size Iron bars which give them a cagelike appearance were originally intended as a defense against robbers and the carts were probably also used for the conveyance of prisoners 'The most picturesque 'proper ty of the Punjab government says John Lockwood Dipling, "is a huge char a bane to which is harnessed a team of four or six fine camels with leopard skin housings and gayly at tired riders" Neither camel nor bullock carts commend themselves much to the western traveler but in out of the way places the latter are often found very useful

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment

Inside the city ' returned Alfonso with a sneer being angry with them because of their tardiness They took the king at his word carried the walls and the next morning the banner of Segovia was floating from a turret of the gate of Guadalajara

AN OBSTINATE MAJOR

He Had His Way Even After He Was In the Coffin

Many amusing stories are told of the great formality blended with a humorous bluntness and independence which characterized early Revolution ary days An incident of camp life is related by the author of "Romance and Reality of the Southern Gulf Coast

In 1798 the first United States troops that came down the Mississippi were quartered at Fort Adams General Wilkinson Colonel Hamtramck Major Butler Captain Green and other officers were merry over their punch one night and the general by some accident got his cue burned off Angry at the laugh which followed his mishap he next day issued an order for bidding any officer to appear with a cue Obedient to orders all the officers but Major Butler cut off their cues

The vain old prig said the major I'll see him hanged before I cut off my cue to gratify him! And he boldly appeared without changing the style of his hairdressing

The major was put under arrest, but he declared obstinately that he would spend the rest of his life in prison before he would comply with such a silly command Soon afterward he was taken very ill and realizing that he was at the point of death he gave instructions for his burial which he knew would be witnessed by the whole command

'Bore a hole said he through the bottom of my coffin right under my head and let my cue come through it that the old general may see that even when dead I refuse to obey his order

And these directions were literally carried out

The Word "Hurrah"

Some authorities connect hurrah with a Hebrew shout of joy to Jehovah, which occurs in the Psalms Others derive it from "Thor aide" a war cry of the ancient Northmen Others point to the Swedish and Danish hurra and the German hurren ' to move quickly or the Danish hurre ' to buzz with which our hurry is associated

Sir Francis Palgrave in his 'History of Normandy and England' says 'It was a wise custom in Normandy established by Rollo's decree that any one who had reason to fear damage of goods life or limb could raise the country by the cry 'Haro!' Ha Raoul justice in Duke Rollo s name, hence our hue and cry The old English harrow and our hurrah' are but variations of this" There are some who regard it as merely an imitative interjection akin to 'whurra ' used by Addison in a play 1715, or of huzza found in Evelyn's Diary 1665

A Limited Edition

There is a paper published in London called the Anti Top Hat It depends for its circulation not upon subscribers, but upon the will of an eccentric old man who hated the conventional form of headgear with a hatred which he carried beyond the grave He fought the "stovepipe" hat while alive and when he died he left his nephew $2 000 a year on condition that he edit and publish a monthly paper devoted to ridiculing the 'top hat' The nephew accepted the legacy and the responsibility and issues his paper regularly though he confines each edition to three copies one for himself and one for each of the old man s executors

A True Canvasback

A good story is told of John Astley a fellow student with Sir Joshua Reynolds in London and in Rome

While walking in the Campagna Reynolds and some other students took off their coats but for a long time nothing would persuade young Astley to take his off At last he was prevailed on to do so and the cause of his unwillingness to comply with the wishes of his friends was then revealed by an oil sketch of a waterfall painted on the back of the artist s waistcoat

The Mother of Pearl Industry

The center of the mother of pearl industry is Singapore The shell oyster is six to ten inches long the larger ones weighing as much as ten pounds It is found on hard bottom channels between islands where the current is strong In gathering it a diver takes with him a bag of coir rope a fourth of an inch in diameter made in large meshes which while suited for holding the shell does not impede his travelling along the bottom

Ancient Head Coverings

The hat is simply a variation of and no doubt an improvement upon the ancient coverings for the head no matter what their shape or material Comment has been made because some noted paintings of Scriptural and oriental life do not depict the headdresses of the males This is most noticeable in paintings of ancient Syrian life for no doubt the Syrians wore then as now, a turban that light and colorless to protect them from the burning sun

Last evening the church was filled to its utmost capacity to hear Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson. The speaker is a fine appearing man, full of vigor. His voice is deep. His subject, "America's Mighty Mission in the World," was most effectually handled. He was time and time again applauded as he demonstrated America's high intellectual and moral supremacy among the nations of the world. Most forcibly did he plead for a larger navy for the United States, so that her voice would be heeded in international councils. He was thoroughly enjoyed.—Huntingdon News.

Barnett's Store

Juliana Street, BEDFORD, PA.

Dress Goods This is Bedford's foremost dress goods store Foremost in style—foremost in variety and foremost in the economical pricing of the charming fall fabrics. Whatever is fashionable can be found here. The stock has been selected with a view of meeting every want. Variety is immense and in the widest possible price range. From the lowest priced fabrics to the very finest. If you can find better goods than ours, or lower prices for goods of the same quality, we should like to know it. You may be sure it will be a genuine surprise to us.

The present is with us, the future before us. Within a short time the holiday season will be here; the time at which perhaps above all others the purse-strings of the great American public are looser than at any other time. Now is the time to prepare for the holiday gifts. Now is the time to see that you are well supplied with all those articles necessary to make those around you happy.

Carpets, Mattings and Rugs

Carpets cost a heap of money—too much for you to afford to buy an inferior grade even at a few cents less in price. But there is one kind of carpet we believe you can afford to own. It's a first class, closely woven velvet carpet, and it has but a second class price here, $1.00 a yard. You'll not realize to what a degree of perfection the American manufacturer has brought the art of rug making until you see this assembly of room rugs. The color schemes evidence the taste of the artist, while the ingenuity of the clever artisan is also well portrayed. A particularly desirable point about these rugs of domestic manufacture is that you can find sizes to fit any size space desired.

Dolls To-day the new dolls, a week or so earlier than in other years, but mothers have been asking us to put them out early so they can get them dressed in time for Christmas, and here they are to-day freshly embarked from the old country. Bring the little ones in to see them.

Hosiery Up-to-date, serviceable and comfortable hosiery for women and children at prices which are appealing because they are economical.

New Fruits Prunes, Raisins, Peaches, Apricots, Currants, Figs, Dates and Citron are coming in now, and housekeepers can feel assured that they are buying the new crop at right prices.

Linens Linens That Are Linen.—Absolute security and pronounced satisfaction at all times buying linens here, because there is never the disappointment that comes when the cotton baseness is revealed at the laundering time. The linens we sell always improve with the washing.

Underwear Sneezing yet? Well, you will be shortly, if you are not now. Remedy? Our heavy and medium weight underwear, of course. It isn't safe to risk thin underwear these days—too many sudden changes in the weather.

Suits A shipment of suits for women has just arrived. Fashion's latest decree is stamped on every one in the lot; and here is where small profits cut a large figure. The customary 100 per cent. is not added to our suits. We are satisfied with a little profit.

Good Groceries It's the precaution we take against impure foods that makes housekeepers feel safe in buying here. Back of that are the lowest prices found anywhere.

Shoes, Felt Boots and Rubbers

It's poor economy at this season to buy shoes that will let your feet get wet. Colds, coughs and general discomfort are the common results of wet feet. We sell shoes that we guarantee to keep the feet dry and comfortable. And the price is no higher than is asked for shoes that will do neither.

Budd's Shoes Boys and girls want style in the shoes just as much as grown people, but still they must be built to endure severe service The young feet are constantly in action—and fitting proportions are an important feature for growing feet. Our "Nature Shape" Shoe fills these requirements to the letter. Every parent should see them. Every boy and girl will like them.

Men try a pair of the old reliable Heywood Shoes the next time you need footwear. We firmly believe that there is no shoe equal to them for comfort and staying qualities. All leathers, $3.00.

Coats and Capes Some beautiful styles in this week at $7.50, $10.00 and $12.98. Handsome Kersey Capes 30 and 36 inches long, with strap trimming, $5.00. Also a beautiful line of children's coats from $1.98 to $8.00.

Warm Furs for cold days are what every lady needs. Would you like to wear nice furs this fall and winter?
